

Abstract

Voluntary work in Denmark – Trends from 2004 to 2012 The project aims at describing and analyzing the trends in voluntary work in Denmark from 2004 to 2012 with a special focus on voluntary social work. Data will be the population survey carried out in 2004 and a new survey carried out in 2012. As far as possible a panel study will be implemented. Furthermore comparative surveys from Norway and Sweden will be exploited. There are three main themes for the project: 1) Changing conditions for social inclusion in civil society. 2) Trends in participation and attitudes to voluntary work over generations. 3) Trends in recruitment and attachment to voluntary work.
